Program: Film

National Geographic's Six Degrees Could Change the World, a degree-by-degree exploration of the impact of warming on the planet.

Based on the book Six Degrees: Our Future on a Hotter Planet by Mark Lynas, the film “roams from the bushfire-ravaged suburbs of Southern Australia to the drought-stricken farmlands of Nebraska to the rapidly melting glaciers of Greenland,” according to a review on Amazon. “ In the process, aerospace engineers, marine biologists, and ordinary citizens share their experiences and predictions.”
